From Blindness to Sight

A Sermonette By REV. J. R. DALLAS

Pastor of Oakland Evangelical Church

Text: Mark 10:45. And Jesus stood still, and said, call ye him. And they called the blind man, saying unto him, Be of good cheer: rise, He calleth thee.

As we read the verses surrounding this verse we find the name of this blind man to be nothing more than a "son of man." Bar, meaning a blind man, meaning a blind man. So we get his name and call him Blind Son of a Blind Man. Some name, and it has a slur in it for he was looked upon as a sinner under a curse. A hard life was his.

First thing to note is that he knew he was blind. Blindness is a symbol of a benighted condition. He recognized this openly as he called. The hardest thing ministers have to handle these days is to get sinners to recognize their condition. They won't admit it secretly if they can help it. Much less openly. But that must be done. There must be a willingness to call on God for forgiveness.

Second, we find he was opposed by the crowd who demanded he keep still. "But he cried ever a great deal." No sinner ever got to the Christ by waiting until the crowds were willing to help him. They always hinder and oppose. He can't wait till the gang gets ready to see you through. You must make up your own mind and your own way. He did.

Third, Jesus was never to pass this way again, but he heard his call and stopped. He stopped the disciples also. And he called this poor rejected fellow through these same helpers who were with him. Christ never mocks a soul. "Tell him to come here." Jesus' sympathy was strong for the needy and for this man who had a place. The good ones of the most outstanding group of His Disciples in what He said "What will you have Me do?" No one dare ask such a question of a needy one such as this, save one who is able to meet the request. The Miracle Worker was talking then. And He could meet any request made, even a request for sight to eyes that had never seen. And He did it. Does a person know when they are saved by the power of Christ? Well, this blind man was just as sure he could see now as he was that he could not see before Jesus stopped and called him over. Yes, any person who is converted surely knows it or it hasn't taken place yet. This man came expecting to receive his sight and Jesus didn't fail him. He never fails an honest seeker for sight.

Fourth, and there is no small part of it either. He had the disciples take a part in this great blessing. "Call ye him." Christian, have you led someone to Christ recently? If you haven't then you have missed one of the greatest joys life can hold. Today there is all too much of leading others TOWARD the Christ. Sunday School teachers do this by just teaching. Others do that much by just testifying, and so on, all of which is good but not enough. Brother, get your man to the Christ. Stand by, don't be satisfied by half-way measures, get him clear across the road and have him talk to Christ earnestly for a minute or so and he will be a different man when Christ gets him to believe. You can't do that, but you can, and if you are a Christian you should, get someone to the Christ. You'll have a real new joy when you do just that. Lots of opportunities to at least try hard. Someone may be inwardly craving for just that kind of friend, these days, and they may not be far away.

Fifth, "And he follow Jesus in the way." No wonder! He could see, and he could see Jesus. He loved this Christ. Who wouldn't? He wanted to keep in sight of this Savior. As long as converts do that they are in little danger of losing the gift He gives. To follow Him here will mean to be with Him over there. And there is no other thing so vastly important. Thank God we may have a share in such a wonderful plan, and in such a wonderful way, with such a wonderful Christ. Don't miss it. There are a lot of blind folks around you.

One of the prime factors contributing to a complete and proper funeral service, is the appearance of the remains.

A life-like and natural appearance is brought about not by mere chance. The degree of success achieved is directly dependent upon the ability and skill of the embalmer.

The satisfaction expressed to us by bereaved families, and the full hearted approval by them of the efforts of our thoroughly trained embalmers, is, we feel a tribute to our claim of truly professional service.

HOGS ON MARKET AT LIGHTER WEIGHTS

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, March 11 — Lower favorable feeding ratios are being reflected in lighter weight hogs, and present indications are that average hog weights for 1944 will be considerably lighter than last year, the bureau of agricultural economics said today.

In recent weeks hog weights averaged almost four pounds lighter than in the same period a year ago, and with less feed grain per animal available the shrinkage will continue throughout the year, the bureau stated.

During the week ending March 4 the corn-hog ratio as released by the war food administration was established at 11.7 to 1. At year ago the ratio was 15.3 to 1. Feed grain prices are substantially higher than a year ago, while the price being paid for all swine are sharply lower than in the early part of 1943.

The average weight of hogs marketed at Chicago Wednesday was 258 pounds, a drop of 10 pounds from a year ago, according to the WFA.

Receipts of cattle were smaller both locally and in the aggregate this week and the general market was active.

Strictly good and choice fed steers and yearlings held steady. The week's top was $17. Supplies of hogs throughout the midwest were sharply reduced this week and prices quoted on all weights and grades. The top for the week was $14.20, highest price since November, 1943. Slaughter hogs were 15 to 25 cents higher than last week's close. The top was $16.50.

New York delegates were not authorized by their state convention to sign the Declaration of Independence until five days after the historic signing on July 4, 1776.

SPAR Recruiters Here Next Week

DOLORA KNAPP

Recruitment of women for service in the SPARS will open here Monday with the arrival from Columbus of Lt. (j.g.) Carolyn Martin and Dolores Knapp, yeoman.

Yeoman Knapp, whose home is in Columbus, received her training at Hunter College, New York City, and Oklahoma A. and M. College of Commerce, Oklahoma City. She has been with the armed forces for the last year and has served as a recruiting officer since August last year. Both are stationed at the SPAR recruiting office in Columbus.

PRICE CHECK-UP SET HERE FOR NEXT WEEK

Survey To Be Made in Groceries, Meat Markets.

In compliance with official orders from Washington, Monday will mark the start of a one-week check by price panel assistants of ceiling prices of all Marion county groceries and meat markets. Arthur Zachman, chairman of the Marion price panel, announced today.

Final instructions were issued Thursday at a meeting held in the war price and rationing office on East Center street when local panel members met with John Holdman, supervisor of this district and L. Liebrand, price panel coordinator, both of Columbus. Later the 10 assistants were assigned to check approximately 10 Marion stores each.

The purpose of the survey is to check the prices of designated items with the ceiling prices; to make certain that all ceiling prices are prominently displayed and to remind violators of any price that doesn't conform to the listed ceiling price.

It is thought that each assistant will be able to cover his territory in approximately a half day. Assistants are also stationed in each of the outlying villages and smaller towns in the county and arrangements have been made to check the rural stores.

After the survey is completed, results will be tabulated by members of the local panel and a copy sent to Columbus. Panel members here will notify any violator so that a correction may be made as soon as possible.

A re-check will be made approximately two weeks later with the workers checking to make sure that all over-ceiling prices were lowered if such action was necessary.

Music Instruments To Be Collected for Service Forces

Wanted—musical instruments for our fighting men. In response to a request from the Army, a citywide campaign to round up old pianos, saxophones, and other musical instruments that are lying forgotten in closets and attics will begin here on March 12. It will run for two weeks.

The variety of instruments wanted is unlimited, except that pianos and bull fiddles are excluded because of their size and photographs because of a lack of facilities for keeping them in shape at the front.

Instruments collected in the nationwide drive will enable soldiers in all parts of the world to form orchestras to entertain themselves and their camp buddies. It will also enable them to engage in less formal musical recreation like gathering around in the evening and singing to the accompaniment of a banjo, harmonica, or other instrument.

The Army has asked the Coca-Cola bottlers all over the country to act as collecting agents for the drive. Any person who has any idle musical instruments is asked to take them to any grocery store filling station, drug store, or place that sells bottled Coca-Cola. The company's trucks will pick them up there and ship them immediately to the Army for distribution at Army camps all over the world.

President's Son In Narrow Escape

By The Associated Press
LONDON, March 11 — Details came known here yesterday of how an RAF flying officer saved Col. Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President and General Smith from a forced landing recently when their plane became lost in a storm.

(The dispatch did not further identify General Smith, but Lt. Gen. Walter B. Smith has been in the European theater as Ger Dwight D. Eisenhower's chief of staff of supreme headquarters of the Allied expeditionary force.)

The Roosevelt plane was unable to establish contact by radio, but RAF watchers realized the situation and sent out a plane piloted by Flying Officer John Kennedy. He located the lost plane and guided the craft to safety.

Col. Roosevelt was quoted as saying "there is nothing to it" after publication of the rescue story in Canada and the United States yesterday, but his words apparently were meant to deprecate the importance of the incident rather than to deny it.

U. S. Army now is using rockets as targets to train anti-aircraft gunners at Camp Davis, North Carolina. The rockets, each measuring 49 inches long, have three fins and are launched by specially-designed carriages. The rockets travel at an initial velocity of 450 miles an hour. Gunners in training bang away at the missiles with 30-caliber machine guns and 40-mm. cannon.

A Strange State of Affairs

AMERICANS are aware that magnesium is one of the important war metals; they understand, also, that it has potentialities. Aside from this, they have little exact knowledge of magnesium, except that it is lighter than aluminum, is used in alloys, is inflammable in a liquid state and is being extracted from sea water, which strikes them as an economically sound idea, because there is plenty of sea water.

Some of the gaps in their knowledge were filled in this week when Willard H. Dow, president of the company which has done most of the spade work in magnesium production and discovered many of its applications, testified before the Truman committee in Washington. It is a long story, but the gist of it is that the method of producing the metal was worked out painfully and expensively, with no encouragement from any source, least of all the government. Then, long after the beginning of war production—long after the magnesium people had warned an uninterested government that their product was going to be important—Washington woke up to the fact one morning that it was important. It proceeded thereupon to throw around its weight and the people's money to stimulate production and, right in the midst of everything, someone in the justice department had the bright idea of accusing the only concern which had shown continuous interest in producing magnesium of conspiracy to keep from producing it. Mr. Dow, whose father discovered the process now in use in this country, wonders just what strange state of affairs in the Roosevelt administration brought this on and seems to be suggesting to the Truman committee that finding the answer might have direct bearing on national defense, which is what the committee is investigating.

The committee will disagree to that, no doubt, but isn't it time that someone began to investigate why the left hand in the department of justice doesn't seem to know what the right hand in United States war production is doing?

Tipping Off an Attitude

THE legislative backlash on the service vote bill which representatives and senators are trying to untangle has revealed something more important in the long pull than the complications of holding a national election with millions of voters in foreign lands.

Probably no function of citizenship is surrounded with more laws and regulations than voting. Any move to change voting provisions is bound to run head-on into questions of constitutionality, unless so devised and handled that constitutional objections are answered in advance.

Yet, tempted by the thought of polling service voters the easy, advantageous way, there were public officials willing to forget all about the constitutional objections—perhaps not even taking the trouble to find out what the constitutional problems were.

When the service vote hula-balo finally settles down to its essential terms—how to adjust election laws to the circumstances of an unprecedented election—it may appear that the most important thing that happened was the attitude tipped off by the contention that the way to do it was just to pass a law and worry about the constitutional objections if and when someone else raised them.

Between the Wars

PRICE ADMINISTRATOR BOWLES is on a safe debating ground when he claims price control has saved the people an enormous sum of money, but his flat comparisons of existing price levels and the inflationary levels of World War I are open to honest doubt.

Aside from such obvious differences as the vastly greater scale of the United States war effort this time, there is an intangible difference of popular mood. Except for isolated exceptions, it is doubtful whether there would have been, even without price control, a repetition of the $20 silk shirt psychology which gripped the United States during the boom of World War I. The easy-come-easy-go thinking of those days was made tragic and ridiculous in the years that followed. Between two wars, Americans learned that a war boom was not a national spree, but a challenge to their common sense. The worldwide depression and revolutions and counter-revolutions which came in the wake of the first of the great international wars taught them that war's grimness no longer could be confined to the warriors and their families; that war was international sickness and the potential dissolution of the people's security.

Not all the people learned, perhaps not even a majority, but enough of them sensed the relationship between the waste of war and their own threatened security to feel called upon to take extra precautions. They have been aided by price control, which was mandatory on government under the circumstances, but to claim that they did not, in turn, aid price control by their own attitude is to ignore the people's ability to learn from their own hard experience.

Air Attacks on Germany Explained; Death of Civilians Not Goal, but Inevitable.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

THE war in the air over Germany has reached a point where it is at once necessary and possible to say clearly what we are doing. It is possible to do this because the strategic objective is now known. It is necessary because both the clergy and laymen here and in England who have protested the bombing are conscientious men who are entitled to a conscientious explanation. It is necessary because the airman should not be sent forth if there is any doubt that they are serving their country and the right.

There is no question that the Anglo-American bombing of Germany is in the exact and full sense of the words a military operation to achieve a military objective.

In the present phase, which began some months ago, it is a misnomer to say that the Anglo-Americans are raiding Germany. They are systematically attacking and seeking to destroy the German air force. There can be no question that this is a true military objective. The purpose of the present aerial invasion of Germany is military. It has already disarmed the German bomber force. It is now a campaign to disarm the German fighter force.

We obscure the truth when we say of the air attack, or for that matter of any other military operation, that our object is to kill Germans or Japanese. This is not our object. Our object is to compel them to lay down their arms. When they do lay down their arms, we do not kill them. We feed them, we bind up their wounds and we accord them all the rights and privileges of prisoners of war under the Geneva conventions.

Our business is not the killing of men but the disarming of enemy soldiers. We kill our enemies in order to disarm them; when they disarm themselves by surrendering, we do not kill them. That is why the war we are conducting is not murder. It is the act of disarming a killer who has weapons in his hands. The killer is killed, he has not been murdered. He has been disarmed.

The question then is whether an armed enemy may be pursued to his home ground where he recruits his forces and makes his weapons. The answer must be clearly in the affirmative. The bomber force which attacked all the neighbors of Germany was made in Germany, came out of Germany and returned continually to Germany for more bomb loads.

Can it be said seriously that the home base of this force should be immune to attack because it is located in cities where there are many innocent civilians? That would be to argue that the R. A. F. was entitled only to repel the German bombers over English cities, but that it had no right to go after the German bomber force and to succeed, as in the main it has succeeded in rendering the Luftwaffe incapable of bombing England.

Military Objectives

The argument that the Allied air forces must not be employed as they are now being employed is based on a failure to understand how they are being employed. To this misunderstanding some of the spokesmen of the air force have undoubtedly contributed. They have dwelt upon the devastation of Germany cities. That is only a consequence of the battle, not the purpose of it.

If all the armed forces of Germany could leave Germany and engage us in the middle of the Sahara Desert, the battles would be fought in the Sahara Desert. The spokesmen ought to dwell upon the military objectives that the air forces have already achieved, which is neutralization of the German bomber force, and upon the military objective that they are now attacking, which is the German fighter force. Then the only man entitled to criticize the strategy of the air forces would be a man who had some more humane and equally effective way of disarming the German bombers and the German fighters. No one has suggested a more humane and suggested a more effective way to do this.

The defeat of the German fighter force is our present objective. If we win this battle we shall be able to destroy the system which the Germans lay out for their armies, the factories, installations and communications which sustain the armies by means of which they have subjugated and now terrorize Europe. If any one knows any easier way of defeating the German fighter force than by engaging it in a battle where it is forced to defend the industries upon which it depends, he ought to say so.

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Sunday, March 11, 1934. Sixty boys and girls from the Marion County Children's home were guests at evening services of Salem Evangelical church. An Easter treat was provided for each and the program included numbers by the children and by the South Side Mother Singers directed by Mrs. Eugene H. Moore.

Friends of Miss Doris Roberts of South Grand avenue, who was to leave the following day for an extended stay in California, gave her a luncheon and personal shower at Ringer's inn.

Mrs. Robert Garster was given a miscellaneous shower when Mrs. Paul Fabian of Blaine avenue entertained in her honor.

A series of revival services at Calvary Evangelical church in charge of Rev. W. H. Laughlin of Columbus closed with a record of 80 persons having answered altar calls in two weeks.

Miss Helen Haubert, a student nurse at Grant hospital in Columbus, spent the week-end at her home on Silver street.

Mr. and Mrs. George Buray and children Helen and David of Lincoln avenue left for a trip through Mexico and the west.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Luke Finnegan of Silver street and a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Nye of the Sawyer road.

Twenty-eight new members were received in services at First United Brethren church following the first week of revival services in charge of Rev. Carl V. Roop, pastor.

Arthur E. Harris of East Church street was elected deputy archon of Delta province, covering three states, at a Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity convention in Detroit.

Handle With Care

Dr. Wilfrid Funk, the dictionary maker, thinks 10 words should be handled with care between now and election day. The words are: Liberty, Equality, Communism, New Deal, Isolationist, Fascism, Capital, Labor, Justice, Democracy.

To show why they need careful handling, Dr. Funk suggests that for a parlor game it would be fun to have each guest write down his definition of any one of them. Democracy, for instance. What is it?

The Problems of Lasting Peace

By Herbert Hoover and Hugh Gibson

(This is another installment of the newly-revised, up-to-date, minute version of their important book, The Problems of Lasting Peace, prepared especially for this series by Herbert Hoover, thirty-first President of the United States, and Hugh Gibson, former minister to Poland and Ambassador to Belgium and Brazil.)

INSTALLMENT VI

Collaboration for Peace

WE can from every evidence today be sure that each of the United Nations will strive to preserve its full independence after the war. Therefore, the Trustees and the other United Nations must operate during the Transition Period by collaboration as free nations. Today we are successfully carrying forward in this spirit one of the most difficult of all human tasks—a joint war.

A few powerful nations are giving leadership in this gigantic undertaking. They advise and consult with the smaller nations. We are doing this huge job by collaboration in the problems which arise from day to day. We are doing it with occasional joint declarations of purpose and agreements upon immediate steps to be taken. We are and should carry on the Transition Period without long-time commitments until all can see the picture far more clearly. Our bond is our common interest.

Bibles Everywhere

The Bible business was never better. The armed forces have received for distribution more copies than there are men and women in uniform. Losses, destruction and wear account for the surplus.

American Bible society, by private subscription and through its own printing facilities, has distributed since Pearl Harbor 3,312,000 pocket-size Bibles to the armed forces, also a half million more in 38 languages to prisoners of war.

Gideon International, famous for putting Bibles in hotel rooms, has distributed about 3,000,000. In addition, the government has distributed more than 4,800,000 and 1,250,000 now are rolling off the press as fast as the government printing office can turn them out.

The government editions are called G. I. Bibles—and according to some authorities aren't as popular with service men as the other editions, because they are larger and heavier.

The only Bible shortage at present is in oversize, annotated or illuminated editions. Otherwise, enough paper and manpower have been made available to give the Bible one of the greatest distributions in its long history.

Earns Army-Navy "E"

By The Associated Press
NEW ORLEANS—A 25-year-old manager who, at 21, took over a small mahogany veneer plant employing a group of Negroes, will receive the coveted Army-Navy "E" award.

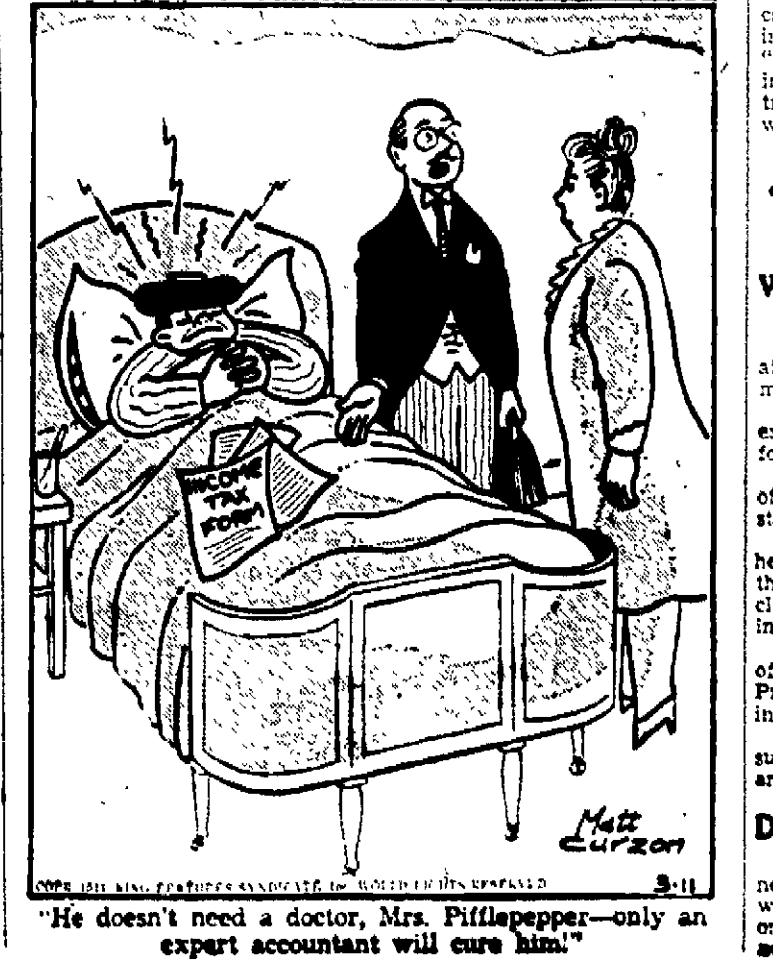

Harry Freiburg, Jr., switched the plant from making veneer for household furniture to making hardwood parts and plywood for planes, gliders, PT boats and landing crafts. He employed Negroes by whole families, giving them houses on the company's grounds, hospitalization, a community farm, free moving pictures. As a result he reduced absenteeism to 4 1/2 per cent and became chief supplier to such great organizations as the Higgins Industries here.

Goes Modern

SAN FRANCISCO—Ghosts of pioneer San Franciscans, whose final resting places in Laurel Hill cemetery proved to be temporary, may haunt the $25,000,000 ultra-modern, high-class residential center to be erected on its site as a post-war project.

Development of the 54-acre Laurel Hill tract for fast-growing San Francisco, hemmed in on one side by the Pacific and on the other by San Francisco bay was ordered by the board of supervisors in 1937 and upheld later by popular vote.

Most of the pioneer bodies were taken to Cypress Lawn cemetery in near-by San Mateo county two years ago.

Honest Confession

Maybe This is Good for Your Soul, Mr. Runyon. But It Won't Win Friends Among Columnists.

By DAMON RUNYON

THIS column has been irregular lately. I think I owe an explanation to loyal customers who do me the honor of saying: "I didn't see your stuff in the paper today. What happened?"

This indicates they looked for it when it pleases me no little. However, I am sometimes perturbed by the fact that when it does appear the customers make no comment. They note when I am out but not when I am in. It is something to worry about.

Well, now, there are two reasons for the irregularity, one being health. But the major reason is that I have had nothing to say.

I hesitated a long time before revealing this. I realize it may be a great shock to some of my customers and might create a precedent of far-reaching consequences among newspaper columnists.

I mean it might change the present established practice of columnists who have nothing to say of just saying it anyway.

Anyway, they might take to following my example in remaining out of the paper when they find themselves in the situation of having nothing to say. While this would save a vast amount of white paper, I fear it would be deplored by many editors.

WHEN an editor contracts for a column to appear daily in public print, he naturally wants that contract fulfilled to the letter and, though the columnist often has nothing to say, the editor is likely to feel it is better to say it in the space and to the extent of the wordage allotted than to deprive his readers of the opportunity of guessing what the columnist means when he says nothing. Quite often columns of this type arouse more discussion than those in which the columnist really says something.

The man never lived who had something to say every day of his life. By something to say I mean, of course, something worth listening to or reading. But if editors took to leaving out columnists when they have nothing to say, every columnist would be reduced to about three appearances a week and some even less. That would be bad for the columnar racket.

I expect no applause from fellow columnists in this confession of the reason for my irregularity. They will probably say I am non-urban. Nor do I expect the commendation of editors. I can only hope for the approval of some of my customers for sparing them the boredom of reading my column when I had nothing to say anyway.

The shock to many of them will probably be in their discovery of my lack of versatility. They will perhaps wonder why I did not fill in with a few letters from vox populi or other omnivorous readers. I thought of that, but on reading a batch of the letters at hand I found they had nothing to say either.

I WORRY like the dickens when I find I have nothing to say and never mind telling me I must be worrying all the time. I want to say something as much as any man alive, yet I have a feeling that whenever I say it should be interesting and entertaining. I have a number of stock subjects that I know I ride too hard, such as the case of the discharged soldiers and my national lottery, but they are not elastic enough to stretch over all the periods when I have nothing to say, like those that some of my more facile contemporaries keep in store.

I envy those guys who, when they have nothing to say, can always turn to labor and to Russia and to belting the administration and also to rearranging the world after the war. This last, ladies and gentlemen, is a matter of which I know so little that I cannot even say nothing about it, though certain of my contemporaries can do that to the extent of eight or nine hundred words daily.

Mumbo - Jumbo

By Truman Twell

Run for the hills—the dam has broken! The lawyers are taking their cue from the dead swine being thrown at income tax forms and may simply some of their other mumbo-jumbo. An advisory committee on rules of procedure in federal courts says the cases should be used to a lot of the mouth-filling phrases that keep court bailiffs' tongues limber and the public mind confused. Progress is on the march.

It may take a couple of centuries to get anywhere, but when it does an ordinary citizen who tries to keep his nose clean and the short two jumps behind him will be able to know what he is getting when he buys an insurance policy. He may even know what he's signing his name to when he starts making easy payments on a new gadget to make his soul mate's house-keeping easier.

The movement might even overflow and drown out some of the excess verbiage in political speeches. A litigant might find out what it means when a judge hands down a 40-page verdict in the case. All kinds of public documents flooded up in 8th grade Latin to make the public regret its lack of higher education might be reduced to plain English. The wheres-ases might disappear from resolutions, and citation notices might be brief and to the point.

A sucker might never need to lip-read his way through the fine print to try to find out whether he is signing an order to chop off his own right arm. It might even become possible eventually to throw away all the fine print which no one can read without hi-focus and the professional assistance of a licensed expert in mumbo-jumbo anyway. Supercolossal might disappear from motion pictures and olive jars. Gushes of syllables like untold treasures and other windy phrases used to describe ordinary stunts to do ordinary things might become as quaint as the cushy words and sentences of the Bronte sisters. This movement toward simple words to express plain thoughts isn't new—it has been going on ever since the first mumbo-jumbo expert in the jungle went too far and someone snarled, "Say it so we can understand it, bub." Occasionally the movement picks up speed, as it is doing now—and that is when all good men move in and go to work with the flit guns.

Or, as the lawyers would say, "Magna est veritas, et praevaleret"—but who cares what they say unless it's boiled down so the people know what it means and how much it is going to cost them when the mumbo-jumbo is over?

MAKEOVER—Hidden beauty emerges under art of Miss Eleanor Dakin, model agency's expert on coiffure and make-up.

By The Associated Press
The Cinderella myth is no myth to Louise Walsh, who in one year was transformed from a $12-a-week messenger girl to a $750-an-hour model—and strictly by accident, at that. It started when Louise, then

19, delivered a telegram to Harry Conover, hunch-playing boss of a New York agency. Liking the girl's features, Conover suggested she become a model and not the standard Brooklyn retort—"Are you kidding?"

Then followed six-months' training, devoted to makeup, clothes, diction and poise. Her first assignment was posing for photographs that appeared in a magazine. Conover expects her to be a "star"—at $25 an hour.

MODEL—Here's Louise, now. A poised, glamorous dream.

Mrs. Lettitz has been employed in the office of the Penney store at Bucyrus and the groom is engaged in farming.

At the recent meeting of the Nevada grange the charter was draped in memory of the late Frank Matleson. A communication was read expressing appreciation for a Christmas gift received by Richard Neiderhauser, an overseas member.

Collett Issues Statement Saying He Told the Truth

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, C. H., O., March 11.—James W. Collett, Clinton county hog breeder who was convicted last night of the triple murder of the Elmer McCoy family, declared today he was "shocked and surprised beyond words" at the verdict which found him guilty of a crime which "God in heaven knows I did not commit."

The disavowal was contained in a six-page statement written in pencil on a tablet which he pulled from beneath the pillow of his cell in the Fayette county jail 12 hours after he had heard a jury declare him guilty on all three counts of a charge that he killed Elmer McCoy his wife Forrest and the couple's 22-year-old school teacher daughter Mildred last Thanksgiving eve.

"I have been trying to pray an unselfish prayer," Collett said in the statement, "that I might be delivered from this net in which I am entangled for a crime that God in heaven knows I did not commit, not only for my sake but for my boy's sake that I love so well, his mother and his family."

Refers To Son
The reference to the son was to Thomas Collett, 29, who testified this week when called as a defense witness that his father had told him that he had killed his Uncle Elmer.

"Both myself and attorneys are both shocked and surprised beyond words at this verdict," the statement continued.

"Oh dear, I am so heart broken for my dear folks at home."

"I was so in hopes I could be spared for their sake."

"I am still hoping and praying that something yet will happen so that I can have a fair deal and save my family an unjust disgrace."

The 60-year-old farmer explained that during the three months he spent in jail awaiting trial he had "no doubt" that in the end "when the truth was known that I would be allowed to return to my home, the dearest spot on earth to me, and continue to be with and work with my boy."

Says His Story True
Declaring that "every word I told on the witness stand was true," Collett added he had been "misled" by those concerned when he confessed in Toledo after a lie detector test in December that he had killed McCoy, but "didn't remember about the women."

Collett issued the statement after a night which started when the prisoner, returned to his cell from the courtroom, sobbed so loudly passersby on the street outside could hear him.

Today his cell was in disarray, and he apologized for its appearance, saying that since he had expected to be released last night, he had not taken the time to straighten it.

The convicted man occupies a little cell about five by ten feet, with his cot, hung from the wall by chains, along one side. Bars reach 15 feet up to the ceiling on one side. Between the bars Collett has stuffed newspapers to keep out the draft.

A bottle of insecticide stood on the floor. The prisoner's radio rested on an orange crate, and on the vicinity of the McCoy home the night the three were slain lay with the prosecution.

Regarding the confession, he pointed out that it must be voluntary and that it was up to the jury to decide whether or not the confession admitted Elmer McCoy was given voluntarily.

Eisenhower Reviews Cadets at Sandhurst

By The Associated Press

SANDHURST, Eng., March 11.—In his first visit to Britain's "West Point," Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower told a graduating class of young officers here today he hoped to "meet them soon east of the Rhine."

The supreme commander of the allied invasion forces reviewed several hundred cadets of the royal military college.

"We can and must win this war," the American general told them in his short address. "Everyone, whether he is in uniform or behind the plow, must do his duty or have on his conscience the fact that he has prolonged the agony our two nations are enduring."

Plans for the funeral are pending further information on when the ashes will arrive here, and questions from his wife and daughter.

ITALY

plying front line Nazi troops had been smashed in two places.

Presence on the beachhead of the 45th infantry division, a new Mexico and Oklahoma unit that won honors in the Sicilian campaign was officially disclosed.

The 45th and the British second field regiment of Royal Artillery were cited as having "distinguished themselves" in recent fighting.

A German patrol of 11 men was captured in the Littoria sector of the beachhead and new German infiltration attempts against U. S. positions southeast of Carroceto were repulsed.

An entire force of about 100 Germans who attacked the Americans Thursday night was wiped out.

Allied artillery on the main front began pounding the town of Cassino, possibly exploding an ammunition dump. Heavy guns broke up German regrouping near Minturno.

Brisk clashes flared at many points on the Eighth army sector.

Nazi Morale Falls As Beachhead Holds

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, ALGIERS, March 11.—Adolf Hitler promised that the Allies' Anzio beachhead south of Rome would be eliminated in three days, and the failure of that promise—a failure that cost the Nazis heavy casualties in their recent all-out counterattack—has had a disastrous effect on the morale of his troops, German pilots were quoted as saying today.

Allied headquarters said the prisoners had stated that Hitler had sent a special message to the army, assuring them the Americans would "be in the sea within three days."

The German army had told them the German air force would provide an air umbrella and that the big offensive would be spearheaded by 300 tanks.

German troops never entered battle with greater confidence or higher morale, they said.

At the end of Hitler's "three days" the enemy's net gain amounted to less than the equivalent of three city blocks, achieved at the cost of terrible casualties.

BOMBERS

Neither the targets on the coast nor in western Germany were specifically identified.

The American attack on western Germany was the second quick dose of bombs for that section of the Reich, the RAF's Mosquitos having made an incursion there during the night.

The air ministry said three aircraft factories and a small bearing factory in central and southern France were hit in a "bombing moon" operation in the continuing campaign to knock out Germany's aircraft production facilities.

The air ministry said one aircraft was lost.

It was the RAF's fourth sizable mission this week.

These raids are capitalizing on a period of bright nights which are excellent for pinpointing targets but which are not good for the concealment required for deep penetrations of the continent.

American fighters again escorted the four-engined Flying Fortresses and Liberators on today's strikes.

British announcements said the RAF continued its campaign against U-boats in the Bay of Biscay in day-long patrols yesterday during which five JU-88s, the "eyes" of the undersea raiders, were shot down.

King Peter's Government Offers Help To Tito

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, March 11.—Stanoff Simic, Yugoslav minister to the Soviet Union, has renounced King Peter's government and placed himself at the disposal of Marshal Tito (Josip Broz), it was disclosed today in a letter published in Pravda.

In a second letter Lt. Col. Miodrag Lotic, Yugoslav military attaché here, announced similar action. Both letters were addressed to Tito.

Simic and Lotic accused the puppet government of failing to conduct a people's war against the Germans and of obstructing the Yugoslav fighters who desired to fight for liberation of the country.

Hope Is Held Out for Relief From Income Tax Returns

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Real hope that this year's income tax return headaches will be the last for 30,000,000 taxpayers was held out today by the treasury and the heads of congress' tax-writing committees.

Under a proposal outlined by Chairman George (D-Ga.) of the senate finance committee, persons with annual incomes of $3,000 or less would not have to file returns at all. Wage and salary deductions would take care of all their tax.

George and Chairman Doughton (D-N.C.) of the house ways and means committee declared in a joint statement every effort will be made to limit the new legislation to removing the complexities of the present law.

In this they had full support of Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, who promised "complete support" of his department.

Morgenthau's pledge appeared a definite gesture of conciliation on the part of the administration toward congress, which a fortnight ago brushed aside a presidential veto and enacted a $2,315,000,000 tax increase bill over Mr. Roosevelt's protest that it was inadequate and unfair.

The ways and means committee starts considering the simplification bill Monday. George estimated it could be dispatched to the President within 60 days from now.

The legislation, of course, would not affect 1943 returns due next Wednesday.

It is tentatively planned to broaden the withholding levy to take in rents, royalties, dividends and interest as well as wages and salaries.

3,000 DAIRY WORKERS WALK OUT IN DETROIT

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, March 11.—A wildcat walkout of more than 3,000 dairy employees, involving approximately 90 per cent of the city's dairies, partially halted milk distribution in Detroit today.

The strikers are members of the United Dairy Workers (CIO) local 83. Inside workers began the walkout at midnight and drivers joined in sympathy. Union officials said the strike was "spontaneous," coming without warning.

James L. Ballard, president of the local, said the strike was not against employers, but in protest against what he termed delay by the national war labor board in setting an award.

The union says thousands of milkmen are on strike and that the city is short of milk.

HEAR NAZIS MOVE CAPITAL TO BRESLAU

By The Associated Press

NAPLES, March 11.—Unofficial but trustworthy reports said today that allied bombers had forced the Germans to move their capital from Berlin to Breslau, 175 miles to the southeast.

The move from bomb-battered Berlin began quietly several weeks ago, and now most of the government functions are carried out at the new Silesian headquarters, it was said.

While a more difficult target than Berlin, Breslau itself is not out of reach of American and British long-range bombers, which approximately 600 miles from Britain's coast and 970 miles from Berlin are in Italy.

The bombers made heavy strikes without effect on the last leg of the journey, and now the city is being shelled by the Luftwaffe.

Mary E. Ballard, a strike leader, said the strike was not against employers, but in protest against what he termed delay by the national war labor board in setting an award.

The union says thousands of milkmen are on strike and that the city is short of milk.

One Mystery At ACID CAUSES DEATH Time. Analyst's OF MARION SOLDIER Rule on Questions

By DEWITT MACKENZIE Associated Press War Analyst

Two too hopeful seekers after a hot tip all but made me miss my early morning train to the office by demanding to know when the European war will end, and for their pains were advised to ask in heaven which alone has the truth.

As I jumped for the coach I looked back that nobody could give a reasonable guess until we have the solution to another mystery—when the allied invasion of western Europe is going to take place. That's the key—barring a long drawn out war or a collapse of German morale. However, the Red army's sensational successes in the Ukraine have created some mighty interesting possibilities.

The Germans themselves have indicated worry over one contingency. This is a cross-channel couldn't learn to kill as he was brought to the hospital as she was just preparing to go off duty.

Hitler, has been fighting off withdrawing troops from Russia after the Soviet front during the early stages on the invasion so to ease the weight of the Nazi counterattacks in France.

Red Marshal Zhukov's amazing drive, which threatens to destroy part of Army Group Center, the only German reserve, may give the Anglo-American allies a chance to choose whether they will strike early, or wait until Russia's spring is past and the steppes are again suitable for all-out operations. Indeed, the Russian successes may so disrupt the fuhrer's organization in Russia that he will be indefinitely prevented from moving many troops to France.

As a matter of fact, the Nazi dictator will be lucky if he doesn't suffer a huge disaster in the Ukraine. Still, we mustn't take a Nazi catastrophe for granted. Von Manstein is a master soldier, he's made an astonishingly clever suicide stand to satisfy Hitler's political schemes, and might pull another rabbit out of the hat.

As the battle is now developing it wouldn't be surprising to see Von Manstein compelled to abandon defense of the southern Polish border and devote his energy to defending the gateway to the Balkans. This presumably would force the Nazis to shorten their entire line by pulling it back to central Poland.

This is one of the decisive engagements of the war.

GALION, March 11.—The living room of the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Strother of Galion, was the scene when the young couple, Kathryn, exchanged nuptial vows with Ensign Jean Ebert, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Ebert of Mt. Gilead. # Golden Gloves Fights To Get Underway Monday at Armory

By CHARLES ELLIOTT

Next week will be full of excitement, keen competition, and all-around enthusiasm along the Marion sports front.

A seldom-witnessed sport locally, amateur boxing, will take over for a three-night stand at the Armory on West Church street.

It'll be the 1944 Marion Golden Gloves tournament, brought back to life by popular demand. The opening zong which will send the first two fighters swinging and dodging in the squared circle will sound at 8 o'clock, on the nose, Monday night. Between 15 and 18 first round elimination battles are scheduled for Monday—which means an action-filled four hour card—and a set of at least 10 bouts will follow Tuesday night.

The nine championship finals will be staged Friday night.

Over 50 Marion and vicinity youths will be after the treasured miniature Golden Gloves in nine weight divisions ranging from the new paperweight class to the big boys, the heavyweights.

First round pairings probably will not be made until Monday before the bouts, although there is some possibility they will be drawn up today or tomorrow.

First Time for Soldiers

This year's Gloves journey is unique in several ways and promises to surpass former amateur pugilistic undertakings here. Not Golden Gloves in the past had included in its contingent of balters members of the U. S. Army. As you probably know, this year's Gloves will be featured by the appearance of 11 Camp Millard soldiers who are pictured elsewhere on this page.

The soldiers' hall from seemingly every nook and cranny of the nation. For instance, Pvt. Robert Day, a 155-pounder, calls Cherokee, Ia., home and Pfc. Joseph Dellino is from Jersey City, N. J. Pvt. Joseph B. Brzezinski, 145 pounds, is from Hamtramck, Mich., and Anthony Callipare, 140, comes from Rochester, N. Y. Then there's Charles McKerrillham, Jr., who was a Mullen, Idaho boy before he joined up. Charles H. Parks used to live in Reynolds, Ga.

Some of these soldiers have had previous boxing experience as amateurs but on the whole are novices. However, they are somewhat older than the civilian boys entered in the tourney. Pfc. Brzezinski being the oldest with his 33 years. Average age of the Camp Millard men runs about 21 while a majority of the Marion and district civilians are under 18.

The Camp Millard Gloves representatives have been in intensive rigid training for the event for the past two weeks, ever since their weigh-in at the Y.M.C.A. Two work outs a week have been held at the Bucyrus Y.M.C.A. and the rest of the time, the men have been rehearsing at the camp recreation center. In charge of

Pleasant Meets Tough Tourney Foe at Westerville Tonight

Pleasant Township, the last Marion county survivor in tournament warfare, will have a tough one to contend with tonight in one of two final round contests of the district Class B event in Otterbein Memorial gymnasium in Westerville tonight. Pleasant's surprising Pleasanton, a highly-regarded quintet at 9 o'clock. At 8:45, Ashville, undefeated in 23 bouts, will tangle with Grove City.

The winners of tonight's two games will qualify for regional tourney competition. If Pleasant wins, they will participate in the Springfield regional.

Pleasant has done a masterful job in making county fans' eyes blink at a rapid rate during tournament action. Coach Porter's charges weren't given much more than the outside chance of a dark-horse to reach the finals in the Westerville tournament which this year was loaded down with first-class club clubs from Class B Central Ohio schools. Pleasant finished fourth in regular season county league play and was runner-up in the county tournament, losing 27 to 18 to Claridon in the final.

But as teams apparently meddled in regular campaigning some times do, Pleasant has upset the title aspirations of supposedly much stronger outfits and powered its way to the finals. They gained the championship round

Tribe Vanguard Leaves Cleveland for Camp Tonight

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, March 11.—The vanguard of the Cleveland Indians leaves tonight for the Tribe's spring training base at Lakewood, Ind., but ball players will be conspicuously absent from the party for perhaps the first time in history.

Business Manager Frank Becker, trainer Lefty Weasner and the usual group of baseball writers and photographers will board a train at Cleveland terminal but the first player will not embark for camp until 24 hours later.

Paul O'Dea, a rookie first baseman and outfielder, probably will leave Cleveland in company with Mickey Rocco, regular first sacker, who notified Vice President Roger Peckinpaugh yesterday he was coming to Cleveland to talk contract.

Training camp does not open until Monday and most of the players are not expected to report until then.

INCOME TAX AND LIFE INSURANCE

Have you overlooked one important fact about it? Did you make twice as much in 1943 as in 1938? If so, you are twice as valuable. But, have you doubled your LIFE INSURANCE? You put twice as much insurance on a $10,000 house as on a $5,000 house, would you not? In addition, Life Insurance helps to prevent inflation and this helps win the war.

Big Ten Books Service Teams

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, March 11.—The nation's two top service football teams last season—Great Lakes and Iowa Preflight Seahawks will take a prominent place on the Big Ten grid card again this year.

Western conference athletic directors and coaches who concluded their annual winter meeting yesterday reshuffled previous tentative schedules to give the Blue jackets five Big Ten foes while the Seahawks were carded for two definitely and probably two others.

Track coaches, meeting last night, set the 1944 Big Ten outdoor track meet for May 27 at Champlain, Ill.

May 27 also was selected as the date for the conference golf and tennis championships with either Northwestern or Chicago as host. The NCAA tennis meet, will be held at Chicago June 26 through July 1.

The shuffling of next fall's football schedule gave Great Lakes the following conference opposition: at home—Sept. 23, Purdue; Sept. 30, Illinois; away—Oct. 7, at Northwestern; Oct. 21, at Ohio State; Oct. 28, at Wisconsin.

The Seahawks will meet Minnesota at Minneapolis Sept. 23 and Iowa at Iowa City Nov. 25.

Soccer Is Tops with English Sports Fans

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR Associated Press Features

LONDON — Although the armed forces have taken many players, just as they have in the United States, professional soccer continues as Britain's No. 1 spectator sport.

Under a special rule, a player in the armed forces can play with the club nearest his post regardless of whether it is the one holding his contract. By obtaining permission from his own club, a player can join any team he can get to for any particular game.

Thus every field is occupied on Saturday afternoon, although the fans never know how the lineups will look until the players appear.

Sellout of 30,000

Transportation difficulties and air raid precautions have caused the crowds to be limited, but the maximum allotment of spectators always shows up and many are turned away from the better games. The limit for the England-Scotland international match at Wembley Stadium Feb. 19, for instance, was 80,000 and the tickets were sold out before 1944 arrived.

Rugby, which resembles American football more closely than soccer, continues under the same handicaps.

In both rugby and soccer, amateur and professional, the various associations are mapping plans for bigger and better things after the war.

Ice hockey today is confined to service teams but with such stars as the famous "Kraus" of the Boston Bruins—Milt Schmidt, Porky Dumar and Bobby Bauer—available, the games in the RCAP and Canadian Army leagues have a healthy following.

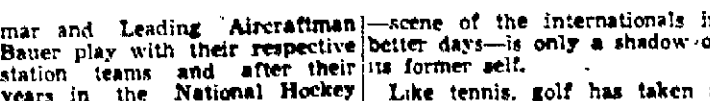

Pilot Officers Schmidt and Dumar and Leading Aircraftman Bauer play with their respective station teams and after their years in the National Hockey League back home they sometimes find it a little odd to be playing on a rink covered only by a tent with a string of poles down the middle of the ice.

Promoters look for a real spurge in this sport after the war. Primarily a participant sport, and very popular, cricket is played hard hit, although it still is played widely. Service teams have taken over such leading fields as Lord's in London but games, which before the war might run a week, now are limited to two days.

Although drastically curtailed, greyhound races are drawing record crowds and the betting runs into phenomenal figures.

Tennis comeback soon

Tennis is expected to make a comeback after the war, although it may take a little time. A few matches are played for charity, but famous Wimbledon

Ferguson as "favorite son" candidate, with the understanding he will turn over the delegation to Mr. Roosevelt if the President desires a fourth-term nomination.

Clarence Mott, Summit county (Akron) Democratic leader, filed a slate of delegate candidates in the 14th district, pledged to him but in reality ear-marked for President Roosevelt. Summit is Ferguson's home county.

Meanwhile, 10 candidates—four Republicans and six Democrats—were in the race to succeed Bricker in the governor's mansion after last night's deadline for filing nomination petitions for the May primary.

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

I KNEW exactly what to expect when I saw Sam Ticer enter the door of the Ticer farmhouse kitchen, followed by his son, Jerry, and our farm manager, Jim. He has not altered his greeting in all the years I have lived near him, and he did not change it now as he advanced and warmly pumped my outstretched hand up and down.

"Well, well!" he said. "You're a sight for sore eyes! Glad to see ya. You're looking mighty well."

Shakes Hands
"Thank you," I told him, and when he released my hand, I turned and shook hands cordially with his son, Jerry, and then with our farm manager, Jim. By the time I had finished, Mr. Ticer and Jim were pouring out five glasses of apple juice.

"You'd better sit down," she told me, and I sat down. "Mrs. Graham has some very interesting things to tell you."

"That's good," Sam Ticer said with a grin as he slipped his knee emphatically. "I've found that it's always exciting when Mrs. Graham starts telling what you call interesting things."

"Well, see that you keep your own mouth shut so she can have a chance to talk," she warned him in friendly fashion, but with a warning note.

"Here, give me one of those to help keep it shut," he said jovially, reaching for one of the glasses of apple juice. "Go ahead, Mrs. Graham."

Scheme
"I haven't time to tell you why I'm asking you to do this for me," I began. "But Mrs. Ticer will tell you all about it after I am gone. Just now, I want to ask you to come over to the farmhouse at two o'clock. That will give you time to get into some clothing which I want you to wear on a trip to Riverhead in Charlie Kent's car. You will sit far back in the car and keep out of sight until he brings you back to wherever he thinks it's best to take you. I don't know just where that will be until I see him. What I want to know is, will you go?"

"It was characteristic of Sam Ticer that he did not look at his son, taking his obedience for granted. But he waited a full second before he answered.

"Why, I don't know of anything to hinder us from going," he said, and I turned to Jerry, who was gazing at me with his eyes alive with interest.

"What about you, Jerry?" I asked. "Will you go?"

"Will I go?" he repeated, as if he just had been presented with a fabulous fortune. "You bet I'll go!" Then he added, with a return to his former shy manner, "I'll always go anywhere you ask me, Mrs. Graham."

"Thank you, Jerry," I said, wondering how I was going to "pad" the conversation until Charlie Kent or his wife would call up, and I could determine whether or not the plan was proceeding according to schedule.

Telephone
But before Sam Ticer had finished his glass of apple juice, fortified by one of the little cakes his wife was passing around, the telephone rang, and Mrs. Ticer moved swiftly to answer it.

"Yes, Bertha?" she said, and I knew Charlie Kent's wife was keeping on the job. "Charlie will come by here and stop at noon. Fine. Thank you, Bertha, and good-bye."

"That's fine," I commented. "Now, Mrs. Ticer, if there's any reason why Charlie can't make that trip, tell him it's important business for my father. If he

YOUR HEALTH
By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
Function of Liver
THERE IS a somewhat too introspective friend of mine who is worried because his liver is the largest solid organ in his body, yet all it does is to secrete bile. And he doesn't consider bile very important, and he used to brood upon the wastefulness of Nature, as shown by creating such a large organ for such a small task. I showed him an article in the magazine "YOUR HEALTH," called "Your Liver Is A Drugstore," and that cheered him up. He thinks a drug store is a very necessary part of any community's life, and if the liver is something like that, it must be all right.

But the liver is much more than our village pharmacy. It not only stores and distributes drug-like materials, but it manufactures some. And it is a great sewage plant. If every city had some sort of a central apparatus which removed all the poisons from the air and water wouldn't that be swell? Yes, it would, and that is what the liver does to that little community at the crossroads of You and The Universe.

As a storehouse and drugstore I give you two examples:

1. When a victory-minded battle takes to heart the carrots in a big hat, she needs them for the free design for its charm, even to the big apple rocket, and this fetching eye-shaped cap Note drop bear; also jaunty short version.

There is given as a cure to patients with certain kinds of anemia. As a grocery warehouse and retail distributor the liver stores sugar, the great energizer, and sends it out as needed by the muscles.

But do not despise the function of bile. Modern doctors speak of the term "bilious," but there is something in it. A great American surgeon, Dr. W. T. Halstead, recorded his experience after a gall-bladder operation. Before the drainage of bile into his intestines became reestablished, all the world looked black; he couldn't look at food. Then one happy day the bile began to go the right way, his appetite became ravenous and all the world sang a paean of happiness.

The liver needs plenty of starch and protein food. Too much fat seems to depress its functions.

Vitamin D is manufactured by the action of sunlight on the skin and is carried to the liver and stored there. That is why fish-liver oils are given for their Vitamin D content. In fact the liver of any animal contains some quantity of Vitamin D.

The mucous membrane of the stomach secretes a substance which stimulates the bone marrow to manufacture red blood cells. If it is lacking the result is anemia. The substance is carried to the liver and stored there and sent out in the blood stream to the bone marrow as necessary. That is why have a good paying job now."
